

Pathways to Psychology

Choose one of eight programs of study for a career in Psychology.

Psychologists are employed in advertising, community development and relations, copywriting, counselling, developmental care, public, community and occupational health, management consultancy, human resources, recruitment, training and development, industrial relations, market research, journalism, marketing, business and retail management, welfare and youth work, and many other areas.

CRICOS Provider Code: 00098G

Never Stand Still

Science

UNSW
AUSTRALIA

Undergraduate Degrees

Bachelor of Psychological Science (3yrs) – 3435

Study a complementary major in addition to the core Psychology requirements.

Bachelor of Science (Psychology) (3yrs) – 3970

Study other science courses alongside your psychology core.

Bachelor of Science and Business (Psychology) (3yrs) – 3925

Join your twin passions for science and business while studying your psychology core.

Bachelor of Life Science (Psychology) (3yrs) – 3966

Study life sciences alongside your psychology core.

Bachelor of Economics (Psychology) (3yrs) – 3543

Study for an economics specialisation while also studying the psychology core.

Bachelor of Psychology (Honours) (4yrs) – 3632

Study additional psychology courses in addition to the core requirements.

Bachelor of Science International (Psychology) (4yrs) – 3987

Study other science courses alongside your psychology core.

Bachelor of Advanced Science (Honours) (Psychology) (4yrs) – 3962

Study advanced level science courses alongside your psychology core.

Bachelor of Psychological Science (Hons) (1yr) – 4518*

Once you have completed one of these Bachelor degrees, you can head out into the workforce or continue along the path to becoming an accredited psychologist.

Visit science.unsw.edu.au for more information, or email studyscience@unsw.edu.au

Complete two year Master by Coursework degree specialising in Clinical or Forensic Psychology.

If not yet done, complete fourth year or Honours year*.

Postgrad Degrees

Master of Psychology (Clinical) – 8256

Clinical psychologists have specialist training in the assessment and diagnosis of major mental illnesses and psychological problems.

Master of Psychology (Forensic) – 8257

Forensic psychologists have high level diagnosis skills and work with courts, child protection agencies and mental health organisations.

Head into workforce

Your skills in psychology put you in a good position to understand how to get the best out of team work environments.

3 years

Bachelor Degree

4 years

Bachelor Degree + Honours

6 years

Bachelor Degree + Honours + Masters